

Laborers Excellent Faith Measurement

Laborers Excellent Faith Measurement

The purpose of this document is to describe to gifted laborers the power of business models. Faith Measurement is Teamwork Measurement. When your work is your calling, business models will get you paid up front for the proven excellence of your work. If your work is your calling, then it is excellent, and when you team with other people doing their calling the result will be excellent teamwork. The only way to measure teamwork is a business model constructed from free or very inexpensive technology with the inexpensive help of a business modeler, a person called to provide this understanding or teamwork measurement.

Faith Measurement in Multimedia

I have a vision of teamwork measurement in multimedia. The technology for this vision is currently available and easy to understand, the only thing missing is getting the public to understand business modeling. To get the public to understand, I have written documents like this that so far have been focused on business owners. In my view, a gifted laborer will be most successful as a business owner. As a business owner, his (his or her) labor will be his business. He will be an independent contributor. His business model will provide a multimedia resume that details his qualifications, and those quals can be structured to his customer's requirements which are also available in multimedia. He will do business with his customer by making and fulfilling commitments. His customer will supply him both initial requirements and the multimedia results of those fulfilled commitments. When he makes a proposal to his next job, he will have in his pocket the quals that show detail of the teams he was on, his specific role on those teams, and his customer's description or measurement of team specific accomplishment.

Gifted Laborers vs. Average Laborers

My vision will only help gifted laborers. It will help them both develop and get recognized for their gifts. By my experience, I believe a gifted laborer is about ten times better than average. But, until we measure teamwork we will not know that difference for sure. Currently laborers get paid based on average quality. Teams of gifted people that measure and understand their teamwork are winning teams.

Summary: Laborers Faith Measurement

The purpose of this document was to describe to gifted laborers the power of business models. Faith Measurement is Teamwork Measurement. When your work is your calling, business models will get you paid up front for the proven excellence of your work. If your work is your calling, then it is excellent, and when you team with other people doing their calling the result will be excellent teamwork. The only way to measure teamwork is a business model constructed from free or very inexpensive technology with the inexpensive help of a business modeler, a person called to provide this understanding. See www.teamswin.net to find that person.